for Sharks: The Deeper Truth Behind the Unbridled Anti-Shark Fearmongering and Malarkey Sharks attack by stealth, not by decapitation. They don't eat humans. They are not man-eaters. Other than the teeth to immobilize and hold, they don't possess more than 1,500 identified species of sharks. The number of people killed per year by sharks - only some of which are fatal - is estimated to be around 40,000. In that same time, according to the World Health Organization, more than 800 million sharks are killed for their meat, fins and oil globally. The great granddaddy of all anti-shark fear mongering is Alfred Wegener, who, after his death in 1929, was best known for his most famous contribution to science, the Oceanographic Principle. It began with wind and cold air lifting sea-water from the surface of the earth and depositing it deep below, subsequently making sea-ice more rare in the early 1900's. Wegener thought this could explain the frozen circumpolar continents seen in photos of the time. His keystone work - which allowed an understanding of the mid-oceanic ridge system, the vast areas of rising and sinking earth that can lead to continental drift - was The Origin of Continents and Oceans. For these reasons, he believed, why most of the planet, including Antarctica, should be covered in glaciers. And, if so, there should be a giant archipelago of floating ice islands around the globe. He did not know this was all the oceanic crust floating freely in the world's oceans and not resting above the sea floor. Wegener was also something of a rabble-rouser; very detached from American academia. From his 1910-1911 voyage by boat to South Georgia, he declared that the world was covered in oceanic sea-ice and his critics said there wasn't any scientific evidence for that claim. His biographer cites a great deal of evidence that supports Wegener's position but was ignored by the academic establishment. Great battles were fought over Wegener's ideas, with those for [and those against] putting this under the heading of science, though Wegener had never really qualified as an expert in matters of this kind. Despite disagreement and debate in scientific circles, it has been agreed that Wegener, despite never being formally qualified by any major society, is acknowledged as the man who first Paper Beast is a deliberately minimalist yet highly detailed, long-term visual exploration game inspired by the classic Atari "Space Invaders" game. The player has the freedom to travel freely through a surreal and bizarre environment. However, for reasons unknown the game will become progressively harder, as the player returns at each stage. The only way to reach the final, hardest stage is to collect the data stored in the form of little stars. But the journey will not end there. Welcome to the fantastic, unseen world of Paper Beast.#1/usr/bin/env bash # Copyright 2017 Google Inc. # All Rights Reserved. # # # Redistribution and use in source and binary forms, with or without # modification, are permitted provided that the following conditions are # met: # # * Redistributions of source code must retain the above copyright # notice, this list of conditions and the following disclaimer. # * Redistributions in binary form must reproduce the above # copyright notice, this list of conditions and the following disclaimer # in the documentation and/or other materials provided with the # distribution. # * Neither the name of Google Inc. nor the names of its # contributors may be used to endorse or promote products derived from # this software without specific prior written permission. # # THIS SOFTWARE IS PROVIDED BY THE COPYRIGHT HOLDERS AND CONTRIBUTORS # "AS IS" AND ANY EXPRESS OR IMPLIED WARRANTIES, INCLUDING, BUT NOT # LIMITED TO, THE IMPLIED WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY AND FITNESS FOR # A PARTICULAR PURPOSE ARE DISCLAIMED.
