A: It's a huge file, and it may take some time to start up. What file browser are you using? If it's Windows Explorer, you could try right-clicking the file and going to Properties, and trying to unzip it there. That way you know if it works. If not, right-click again and try "Start Compressing...". You have to do this every time you unzip the file; the program is just trying to tell you what it's going to do. If the file has contents, you can get them on the web by "Getting Contents" and then if you right-click the "File URL" you see there and choose "Copy URL", that will copy the contents to your clipboard. The web address will have a lot of "...", which are just placeholders for the real url. A: If you have a Mac OSX, it may work. Steps are: - click the "Get Contents" in the "File URL", get the data - double click the file. It works well. Q: Checking file size in a game, to skip pictures I have been searching for a while now and read a lot, but can't really make it to work. I am making a game where the player has to collect dots in a random level by typing X. I added the pictures on click, by typing Y, and want to check the size of the pictures so that when a picture is bigger than 300x300 I skip it (and do not add it to my level), but I can't get it to work. Code so far:

var amount = Math.floor(Math.random() * number); // Delete every picture that is pressed before the number is created. document.getElementById("imagesContainer").removeChild(document.getElementById("imagesContainer")); for(var i = 0; i < amount; i++) { var image = document.createElement("img");

(Who, what, when, where?) I understand that the sentence is grammatically incorrect, but here, the author used ° in such manner, just one word? Or is it a shorthand to express such°? A: You're absolutely right that the English structure "Nobody was expecting her to stay such a long time, nor make such a career." is incorrect. The author may have put ° there for emphasis or maybe the editor thought it fit with the style of the book (an old-fashioned, folksy novel). The ° is simply there, not supposed to be grammatically significant. f o r j . - 1 L e t w = - 3 + 1 0 . S u p p o s e - 1 = 4 * c - w . S u p p o s e 4 * j - 1 4 = 3 * f ,
