A 19-year-old Quarter Horse mare was examined because of a 13-month history of excoriations and fissures over the dorsal portion of the left hindlimb. This problem had been present since the horse was weaned, and fissure formation had been noted since a 10-month history. The fissures were unhealed when the horse was examined. The only systemic abnormalities noted were mild neutrophilia and hepatic lipidosis. A skin biopsy from a fissure revealed mild to moderate infiltrates of mononuclear inflammatory cells. Nodules containing a hyperplastic, but well-demarcated epidermis covered by a thin stratum corneum and a conspicuous, elongate overlying hypergranular layer of the stratum corneum were present. Eosinophils were not present in the infiltrates. The stratum corneum appeared to be normal. Based on the clinical and histologic findings, the horse was diagnosed as having fissural dermatitis.Q: Adding JPanel as well as JButtons to JFrame I have a class called Toolbar, with a number of buttons. The Toolbar class extends JPanel. I have my main class where I am creating a JFrame. In the constructor of that main class, I'm creating a Toolbar object. The toolbar is inside the main class so adding/removing/changing buttons to a JButton isn't a problem. But how can I add/remove/change the whole JPanel (inside the toolbar?) I've tried for a few hours and haven't been able to figure this out. My code: public class TabsPane_GUI_main extends JFrame { public static final int WIDTH = 500; public static final int HEIGHT = 400; public TabsPane_GUI_main() { JPanel topPanel = new J
